ABSTRACT

According to one embodiment, a network is disclosed. The network includes a server computer and a client computer. The client computer accesses an authentication stack during power on self test (POST) that enables authentication of boot code that is to 5 be downloaded from the server computer prior to control being passed to the operating system.